One might perhaps get the impression that the concept of sportsmanship is an ancient notion. The purpose of this study was to explore whether a definition of sportsmanship could be developed that would be applicable to a wide range of sports and activities. The study was conducted in three phases: a literature review, a focus group, and a survey. The results of the study suggest that sportsmanship is a multidimensional concept that includes both behavioral and attitudinal components. The study also identified several key dimensions of sportsmanship, including respect for the rules, respect for opponents, and respect for oneself. The study concludes that a multidimensional definition of sportsmanship is needed to better understand and promote this important aspect of sports.

Examples of good Sportsmanship

- Cheering for both teams during the game
- Shaking hands before and after the game regardless of outcome
- Never swearing or getting angry
- By winning or losing gracefully

SPORTSMANSHIP

Sportsmanship is when you are following the rules and being kind and respectful to others, whether you win or lose!

Sportsmanship looks like...

- Shaking hands with the other team, even if you lose
- Congratulating somebody if they do a good job
- Being honest and not cheating
- Being cool and not taunting or name-calling
- Having a positive attitude even if you lose
- Not bragging if you win the competition
- Understanding how the other person is feeling if they lose
- Trying your coping skills if you get angry during the game
- Giving positive feedback to your teammates
- Learning how to listen to feedback from others without getting upset
- Accepting the results if you lose
- Showing respect to anyone who gets injured
- Not quitting or giving up when you're losing the game

GOOD SOCIAL SKILLS

Examples of good social skills

- Sharing your toys with others!
- Saying “please”, “thank you”, and “excuse me”!
- Being a good sport!
- Knowing how to have a conversation!
- Having good table manners!
- Being kind and helping others!

Can you think of any other examples of good social skills?

Would you want to be around anyone who does any of these things?
